COMMUNICATIONS

To the readers and users of Nestor resources, from the editor:

I am taking the opportunity of this period during which physical libraries are closed to expand and improve the list of digital journals and publications checked for bibliography to include in Nestor.

Please, therefore, send references and URLs for your digital publications that are not currently included in the Nestor database; I am particularly looking for scientific journals, especially ones from which Nestor has never listed an article, which are therefore not currently on my spreadsheet of journals to check. In order to be listed in the May issue (47.5), the whole volume will need to be accessible, not just one article, but even if that condition cannot be met, the reference would still be valuable so it can be collected in full later when libraries reopen.

The email address of Nestor is in the masthead and on the website.

Thank you, and all best wishes. – Carol Hershenson, editor.

From the Editor

My thanks to everyone who has sent references to or digital copies of publications not previously included in the Nestor database. Please keep them coming! I tender my deep gratitude to the librarians of the John Miller Burnam Classical Library at the University of Cincinnati — Rebecka Lindau, Mike Braunlin, and Shannan Stewart — sine quibus non.

Announcements

We have received the following note from Professor John Bennet (BSA) and Dr. Yannis Galanakis (Cambridge): “We are delighted to announce the launch of the digital Mycenae Archive in celebration of the centenary of British excavations at the renowned Bronze Age site. It draws upon the core collection in the Archive of the Faculty of Classics at the University of Cambridge and two collections from the Archive of the British School at Athens (BSA): the Mycenae Excavation Records and part of its BSA-Society for the Promotion of Hellenic Studies (SPHS) Image Collection.

The Mycenae Archive consists of notebooks, drawings, plans and photographs of the archaeological endeavours of the team of the BSA at Mycenae in 1920-1923, 1939 and 1950-1957 under the directorship of Alan John Bayard Wace (1879-1957), BSA Director (1914-23). All these documents have been digitised and reunited to be available as a resource for exploring Mycenae in the University of Cambridge Digital Library: <https://cudl.lib.cam.ac.uk/collections/mycenae>. The material held at the BSA is also available via the School’s Digital Collections website <https://digital.bsa.ac.uk/>. Happy Browsing!”

Please send queries about the Archives at the Faculty of Classics, University of Cambridge, to archives@classics.cam.ac.uk; please send queries about the BSA Archives to archive@bsa.ac.uk

We also reprint this note from Professor Ingo Pini regarding the photographs in the CMS series: “To all colleagues interested in the study of Minoan and Helladic seals, signet rings and sealings:

In recent years I undertook the time-consuming effort to improve the quality of the photographs of original seals, signet rings and sealings as well as that of modern impressions.

Many new photographs of impressions were made. In addition a better quality of the already existing photographs as published in the volumes of the CMS series was achieved by using Photoshop. Colleagues should now use the photographs of ARACHNE (<https://nam10.safelinks.protection.outlook.com/?url=http%3A%2F%2Farachne.uni-koeln.de%2Fdrupal%2F&data=02%7C01%7Caegeanet%40lists.ku.edu%7C24fe9d22f9b34433407708d842ba4439%7C3c176536afe643f5b96636feabbe3c1a%7C0%7C1%7C637332715075810355&sd=As5juMHPUnVIk0khevP2WFMpmvgCvtjQEvgHejxiR%2BE%3D&re=served=0>) or get scans, at present from Professor Diamantis Panagiotopoulos at Heidelberg University, Faculty of Philosophy (diamantis.panagiotopoulos@urz.uni-hd.de). In the near future a small amount of colour photographs will be available, too."
