. . . qu'il est permis de rire entre mycéenologues

At the suggestion of S. G. Pembroke we quote: "Homer is evidently still sometimes reckoned as a status symbol. At any rate, the Old Spaghetti Factory restaurant in Vancouver (surely the last outpost of the Greek biographical tradition) advertises its Spaghetti with Browned Butter & Mizithra Cheese with the words: 'Legend has it that Homer lived on this while composing the Iliad'." - Fiction in the Biographies of Ancient Writers / Janet Fairweather. - Ancient Society (Leuven) 5 (1974) 231-275, esp. 252, n. 103.
