Forum

The first issues of the Cambridge Archaeological Journal, published by Cambridge University Press, are due to come out in April and October of 1991. The journal, ranging widely in space and time, will focus particularly on the role and development of human intellectual abilities as reflected, for example, in the art, religion and symbolism of early societies. It will also provide a forum for the publication of other significant archaeological research, both descriptive and theoretical. The editor is Dr. Chris Scarre, McDonald Institute for Archaeological Research, University of Cambridge, 62 Sidney Street, Cambridge CB2 3JW.

The Journal of Mediterranean Studies, a new interdisciplinary journal published twice yearly by the Mediterranean Institute at the University of Malta, is specifically aimed at scholars whose professional academic interests are with Mediterranean cultures within the fields of Social Anthropology, Classics, Archaeology, History, Popular Art, and Literature. Editorial correspondence and submissions should be sent to Dr. Paul Sant Cassia, Department of Social Anthropology, Free School Lane, Cambridge CB2 3RF, UK. A forthcoming special issue is entitled Religion and Society in the Prehistoric Mediterranean.

Vegetation History and Archaeobotany, another new journal, covers the entire field of vegetation history -- mainly the development of flora and vegetation during the Holocene -- in all areas of the world. Of special interest will be the human impact upon the natural environment in prehistoric times. For further information contact Springer-Verlag, Journal Production Department II, Postfach 105280, D-6900 Heidelberg, FRG.

The Holocene, an interdisciplinary journal emphasizing environmental change over the last 10,000 years, published its first issue in March. Detailed Notes for Contributors may be obtained from the Editor, Dr. John A. Matthews, Department of Geology, University of Wales, College of Cardiff, PO Box 914, Cardiff CF1 3YE, UK.
