Tebtynis, Arsinoite nome (found), AD 248

Division of land (synchoresis)

Addressee

To Aurelius Maximus also called Hermaiskos, priest, archidikastes, and officer in charge of the chrematistai and the other courts, from Marcus Aurelius Herodes also called Lourios, citizen of Antinoopolis, and from Marcus Aurelius Sarapammon or however he is styled.

Parties

Considerans

Whereas ⁵ Aurelius Sarapammon and Lourios have come by succession of inheritance into the possession of grain lands near the village of Kerkeosiris in the subdivision of Polemon in the Arsinoite nome, viz. seven arouras in two parcels, and near the village of Tebtynis in the same subdivision in the place called Karion, seven arouras likewise (in two parcels), and near the village of Kerkesis one aroura, ¹⁰ making a total of fifteen arouras, which have hitherto been undivided, and whereas they have now decided to divide these on the understanding that each should identify his own share,

Agreement proper

Aurelius Lourios and Aurelius Sarapammon now agree that they have divided the aforementioned arouras, and that of the seven arouras near the village of Kerkeosiris ¹⁵ each of them has received 3 1/2 arouras, of the seven arouras near the village of Tebtynis each of them has received 3 1/2 arouras, and of the land near the village of Kerkesis each of them has received half of that (one) aroura, so that each of them may henceforth possess and own the part that has fallen to him, viz. 7 1/2 arouras, ²⁰ and manage and make arrangements about them, each in whatever way he chooses,

Pro memoria about other properties and (they agree that) Aurelius Sarapammon has entire control of his property near the village of Theogonis, viz. 3 out of 6 arouras, because Lourios has sold his half share, and they have left as common property ²⁵ the 2 arouras belonging to them near the village of Tebtynis in the place called Pagagoros, until some decision will be reached about them, and further settlement will be made by them about whatever other property they find to appertain to the estate, ³⁰ and Aurelius Lourios will not proceed against Aurelius Sarapammon on account of the house in the metropolis, having sold the half share belonging to him.

Closing

And so on.
